Welcome to the Faculty of Arts

As Dean, I am delighted to extend to you a warm welcome to New Zealand's internationally-ranked and leading faculty of arts.

Postgraduate study in our faculty provides you with a wonderful opportunity to follow your passion and explore your path to knowledge and discovery in disciplines that are of critical importance to today's world. Through your studies, you will have the chance to fulfil your academic potential, gain valuable insights and be prepared for the challenges of the future. You will be part of a faculty that is internationally recognised for its excellence and innovation in teaching and research. You will work closely with academic staff who are keen to challenge you, extend your understanding and create new opportunities for research and collaboration.

The benefits of postgraduate study in Arts extend far beyond your own personal experience. You can develop outstanding abilities that will enable you to make a positive difference to society now and in the future. Both the public and private sectors need graduates with strong critical thinking and problem solving skills. Potential employers are looking for graduates who can adapt to changing situations through creative, flexible minds, who have the ability to conduct robust research and analysis, and who are able to convey their findings and ideas through excellent communication skills. Thinking globally, New Zealand and the world needs people with deep cultural understanding and heightened global awareness. Postgraduate study in the Faculty of Arts cultivates all these qualities and skills.

The knowledge and skills you will gain can give you access to a wide range of professional careers in New Zealand and around the world. Our graduates are making a difference in roles as diverse as policy analysts and archaeologists, historians and CEOs. They work in business and not-for-profit organisations, the media, the public sector and local government. Like them, you will be well prepared for careers that require creative, strategic thinking and the ability to make connections and build relationships.

I congratulate you on your decision to take up the challenge of postgraduate study, and I look forward to the unique contribution you can make to our faculty and beyond.

PROFESSOR ROBERT GREENBERG
Dean of Arts
The University of Auckland

Why choose postgraduate study at the Faculty of Arts?

We are internationally recognised as New Zealand's leading arts faculty* and are renowned for our academic and research excellence. Our community of academic staff and students will challenge your thinking and enrich your journey of learning and discovery.

Career possibilities

Investing in postgraduate study can enhance your career potential by sharpening your transferable skills. Your advanced specialist knowledge and demonstrated commitment will also help you stand out from the crowd. This can be a real advantage in today's competitive job market as employers are seeking the dedication, determination and advanced skills of postgraduate students.

Financial support

The University of Auckland offers $26 million in scholarships and awards to postgraduate students each year. From diplomas to doctorates, there are scholarships available for all levels of postgraduate study. The Faculty of Arts also offers opportunities for graduate students to help fund their study by working as Graduate Teaching Assistants and Research Assistants. You may also be eligible for financial assistance to attend conferences.

Study options

With more than 40 subjects to choose from, postgraduate study is a chance to deepen your understanding in areas you find intellectually stimulating and personally rewarding.

Depending on your interests and academic background, you may even be able to take a new direction in a related field. You can choose from a range of taught or research postgraduate degrees and diplomas including a one or two-year Master of Arts. We also offer programmes in more professionally oriented areas such as public policy, language teaching, screen production, translation and creative writing. Most postgraduate programmes are also available to be taken part-time, and most can be started in either Semester One or Semester Two.

Research opportunities

Our research contributes to a better understanding of the increasingly complex social and cultural factors that shape our world. There are many opportunities to conduct your own research during postgraduate study, from small research projects to large-scale PhD theses. You will work closely with our supportive academic supervisors who will help guide your research project and lend their expertise to your learning.

"I'm currently researching the transformations in public space in contemporary Turkey, using a queer theory framework. I interviewed people from queer populations in Turkey to find out more about what "publicness" means to them. I think what I've found complicates some fundamental assumptions we make in Politics and International Relations regarding representation, space and identity.

"I originally applied to write a very different topic, but my supervisor encouraged me to work closer to materials I was more interested in – and I'm very grateful for that advice.

"I strongly encourage anyone interested in a PhD to apply to programmes where they can be assured they will receive academic and structural guidance that makes sense for their unique project. After discussing my interests and goals with my prospective supervisor, I was convinced that they could provide me with the support I needed to succeed, so I left my hometown in New York and moved to New Zealand."

Paul Kramer is currently studying for a PhD in Politics and International Relations.

“I’ve always been intrigued as to why some countries are more developed than others, especially after I came to New Zealand and realised the enormous social differences in comparison to my home country of Guatemala. My postgraduate research focused on the extractive institutions in Guatemala and their impact on the country’s inequality.”

“Any person with a social conscience will find Development Studies a very appealing subject. It covers such a broad variety of topics like human rights, poverty alleviation, health, economics and environment – all of which have the same goal of improving the conditions in less developed societies.

“I must confess that I was concerned about returning to university after a 15 year absence. Nonetheless, once I started attending classes, I felt confident again. The enthusiastic discussions in the classroom reinforced my decision to return to study and the lecturers were very supportive. My fellow Development Studies students all had a strong commitment to learn and succeed in class.

“Studying part-time allowed me to continue working as a Customer Improvement Manager for Fonterra. Every day I put into practice the research and writing skills I’ve gained from study to identify areas of improvement and provide efficient solutions to our customers. Development Studies increases your social awareness, which is an asset that can definitely be applied in any field.

“It is never too late to go back to university and pursue your dreams. The investment in time and money definitely pays off. Being a postgraduate student has been an outstanding experience.”

Mario Romero recently completed a Master of Arts in Development Studies.

Where can it take you?

Invest in your future with a postgraduate qualification from New Zealand's leading arts faculty*.

Postgraduate study will take your skills, abilities and personal development to the next level. As well as deepening your knowledge of a particular area, you can also enhance your career prospects by gaining the advanced transferable skills that employers need and value, including:

- Critical judgement
- Creative thinking
- Complex problem solving
- Project management
- Advanced communication and presentation skills
- The ability to research, analyse data and draw valid conclusions
- Strategic planning and time management

A history of success

Using the skills and knowledge gained from your postgraduate degree, you can help to shape today and the future. You can take the abilities you have honed through your study into many different professional roles in a wide range of fields. Our graduates work in areas as diverse as diplomacy, charities and NGOs, media, academia and business and have secured rewarding professional careers as:

- Strategic Projects Analyst – Department of Conservation
- Democracy Services Graduate – Auckland Council
- Policy Adviser – Independent Māori Statutory Board
- International Consultant – Climate Change Division of the United Nations Development Programme
- Programme, Policy and Partnerships Manager – Aga Khan Foundation, Uganda
- Chief Executive – Child Cancer Foundation
- Film Director/Producer – dOOG Films
- Economist – Poverty Reduction and Economic Management Unit of the World Bank

“As an employer, I can tell you that an Arts degree gives you the kind of skill set you’re going to need for a world that is changing so fast.”

Dame Claudia Orange OBE, DNZM
Head of Research – Te Papa Museum, Wellington.

“I have recently been employed by the Ministry of Business, Innovation and Employment (MBIE) as a Graduate Policy Analyst. I’m really excited about this position because it’ll be a great opportunity to put the theories I have learned through my postgraduate studies into practice.

“Completing a Master of Public Policy has increased my employability because it’s provided me with a comprehensive skill set, including the ability to analyse and evaluate quantitative and qualitative data and write reviews, policy briefs and reports. It’s crucial that employers know they can have total confidence in your skills.

“My experience as a postgraduate student was very enriching. There was more one-to-one time with lecturers and classes were very interactive, with a lot of thought-provoking discussions. The lecturers were very friendly, knowledgeable and approachable.

“If you are interested in a career in policy making I would recommend a taught Master of Public Policy. I believe it will help you gain the essential skills to stand out and be successful in your future employment. It did for me.”

Nayana Islam completed a Master of Public Policy (MPP) and is now a Graduate Policy Analyst at the Ministry of Business, Innovation and Employment.

Postgraduate research

Your research can contribute to our understanding of the cultures and dynamics that have shaped our world and that influence society and human experience today.

Research opportunities

There are a number of opportunities for you to conduct research during your postgraduate study. Research projects vary depending on your abilities and experience – from entry level, which includes training in research methods, through to one or two-year masters theses and large-scale PhD research. In some programmes you can also undertake research alongside taught courses, using your learning to influence the development of your own discoveries.

If you are enrolled in a Bachelor of Arts (Honours) or in your final year of undergraduate study, you also have the opportunity to apply for the Summer Research Scholarship programme. These research scholarships give both domestic and international students the chance to gain valuable skills and experience by collaborating on a research project that is individually supervised by an academic staff member.

Former Summer Research Scholarship participants have co-authored presentations at international conferences and articles for publication in academic journals. The programme is a great opportunity to network, add value to your CV and enhance your career prospects while earning a stipend of $5,000 over a 400-hour period of research experience.

For more information visit

www.arts.auckland.ac.nz/summer-scholarships

Career benefits

Completing your own research project can hone skills for rewarding careers in a wide range of fields. You can develop skills in analysis, problem-solving, creative thinking, written and oral communication, presentation and strategic planning. The specialist knowledge you can gain and your demonstrated commitment will ensure that you have a point of difference for future employers.

The research you do as a postgraduate student could also be the first step towards a fulfilling academic career.

Academic support

Pursuing your own research is an opportunity to work closely with our academic staff, many of whom are internationally recognised as leaders in their fields. Their experience and achievements will add value to your postgraduate experience. Our staff research interests include areas as diverse as:

- Cyber security
- Gender and language
- Disaster recovery
- Infectious diseases
- Policing and restorative justice
- Indigenous cultures, society and lives
- Colonial and post-colonial literature

When undertaking a research project, you will work on an approved topic with an academic supervisor from within your subject area. This enables you to build up your skills and confidence with the guidance and support of an experienced researcher. You will usually have a close working relationship with your supervisor and for many students this is the most enjoyable and valuable part of their postgraduate study experience.

Resources and funding

Resources for postgraduate research include specialist skills workshops, dedicated support from Libraries and Learning Services and the Faculty of Arts Doctoral Writing Programme. There is also an Arts Graduate Study Centre that provides study space, discussion rooms and computers. Every disciplinary area has a Postgraduate Adviser who can offer advice and support.

Opportunities to fund your research include employment possibilities as Graduate Teaching Assistants or Research Assistants, plus a range of grants and scholarships. All University of Auckland PhD students receive an annual stipend designed to help cover direct research costs.

You may be eligible for financial assistance to attend conferences and you can enjoy the regular research seminars and lectures we host, which often feature international scholars.

"I have been studying as a postgraduate student at the University of Auckland since July 2010. I completed my Master of Arts in Language Teaching and Learning with First Class Honours and am now studying for a PhD. My thesis topic involves primary school teachers' language perceptions, preferences, and practices in rural Pakistan."

"The last five years of my life have been extremely rewarding, both intellectually and socially. I won a Graduate Student Award from the American Association for Applied Linguistics (AAAL). It's a great honour and for a PhD student, getting this is huge. I also received a Doctoral Dissertation Grant from the International Research Foundation (TIRF), a non-profit organisation whose mission is to generate new knowledge about English language teaching and learning. This is a very competitive award as people from around the world apply for it."

"Throughout this journey, I have found that the teaching staff at the Faculty of Arts are always ready to go the extra mile to ensure that students do not face any hurdles. The same goes for the library, technical and supporting staff. The student life is also rich and eventful."

"New Zealand is a beautiful country, and when I found out about the impressive rankings of the University of Auckland, it was an obvious choice for me to move from Pakistan to study here."

Aziz Khan completed a Master of Arts in Language Teaching and Learning and is currently studying for a PhD in Applied Linguistics.

Arts research in focus

As part of their course work, a group of Anthropology students travelled to Great Mercury Island, eight kilometres off the coast of the Coromandel Peninsula, to excavate an ancient sand dune area. Over three weeks their research uncovered 13,000 objects, including stone artefacts and animal bones.

"We excavated a big area and we uncovered some just amazing material," reflects Professor Simon Holdaway, one of the accompanying academics on the trip.

"It is a site that's almost certainly very early because it's got moa bones in place in ovens. The significance is that the moa must have been alive shortly before."

Because of this rare find, Professor Holdaway estimates the site to be over 600 years old.

"It indicates that it must be a very early site in our history, not just for the North Island but for the whole country.

"We also found significant quantities of obsidian, which doesn't originate on the island and therefore must have been brought in by the people inhabiting Great Mercury, likely from nearby Mayor Island."

The team's next visit to the island will be in June 2015 where they will evacuate another part of Coralie Bay that is also eroding.

Mercury Island is just one of a number of sites worked on by Anthropology students, which also includes locations in Australia and Egypt. Anthropology field schools give students a unique opportunity to apply their learning to a real world situation, as well as actively contribute to the research and scholarship in their area.

"I went on the first field school trip to Great Mercury Island as an undergraduate student in 2013," Zach McIvor, one of the students who accompanied Professor Holdaway to Great Mercury Island, comments.

"I fell in love with the island and decided to carry out my BA(Hons) and MA research on the archaeological remains found there. As a student and researcher, I consider myself very fortunate to be able to have the experience of working with the great team of staff and fellow students from the Faculty of Arts on this important archaeological site."

Our postgraduate programmes

Honours and masters degrees

Bachelor of Arts (Honours) – BA(Hons)

You may take the one-year BA(Hons) as a qualification in its own right after a Bachelor of Arts. The BA(Hons) may also qualify you for admission to a one-year Master of Arts at any time in the future. It consists of 700-level taught courses and a small research project. Part-time study is also available over two consecutive years.

www.arts.auckland.ac.nz/ba-hons

Bachelor of Theology (Honours) – BTheol(Hons)

The BTheol(Hons) is a separate qualification that can be taken after a completed Bachelor of Theology or equivalent qualification. You can also use the BTheol(Hons) as the entry qualification for the one-year Master of Theology at any time in the future. The BTheol(Hons) consists of advanced taught courses and some supervised research. The BTheol(Hons) is completed in one year full-time or up to two years part-time study.

www.arts.auckland.ac.nz/btheol-hons

Master of Arts – MA

There are two separate MA options available, depending on your entrance pathway. Both include research and taught programmes (some subjects only offer a research masters).

The 120-point MA takes one year of full-time study, with admission from a Bachelor of Arts (Honours), Postgraduate Diploma in Arts or equivalent. For a research masters you will complete a thesis or research portfolio; in some cases you can combine a shorter thesis with one or two 700-level courses. The taught masters consists of 700-level courses and a research component of at least 45 points. Part-time study is also available.

The 240-point MA takes two consecutive years of full-time study, with admission from a Bachelor of Arts or equivalent. The first year consists of 700-level courses, with grade requirements applying for progression to the second year. The second year will generally consist of a thesis or research portfolio (for a research masters) or further 700-level courses and a research component of at least 45 points (for a taught masters). Part-time study is also available.

www.arts.auckland.ac.nz/master-of-arts

Master of Creative Writing – MCW

This one-year, full-time programme is for students who want to pursue a creative writing project in fiction, poetry, multi-media, cross-genre, drama or creative non-fiction. You will complete a full-length manuscript, learn about writing studies and creative genres, and work with both your peers and an individual adviser.

www.arts.auckland.ac.nz/creative-writing

Master of Indigenous Studies – MIndigSt

The Master of Indigenous Studies will provide students with the opportunity for intellectual engagement, learning and research that contributes to the social, political, cultural and economic development of indigenous peoples. The programme is underpinned by an indigenous world view, which aims to develop informed graduates with strong critical and analytical skills that can be applied to a range of career opportunities and disciplines specialising in indigenous studies. It is a three-semester, cross-disciplinary, and cross-faculty programme that admits students from both Arts and non-Arts backgrounds. This new programme is planned to be offered in 2016, subject to approval.

www.arts.auckland.ac.nz/indigenous-studies

Master of Literature – MLitt

The MLitt consists of a thesis that is completed in one year of full-time or up to two years of part-time study. If you already have a masters degree, the MLitt enables you to carry out research without doing a PhD.

www.arts.auckland.ac.nz/mlitt

Master of Professional Studies – MProfStuds

This taught masters degree has specialisations in International Relations and Human Rights, or Translation. The MProfStuds is completed in one year of full-time or up to four years of part-time study.

www.arts.auckland.ac.nz/international-relations-human-rights
www.arts.auckland.ac.nz/translation

Master of Public Policy – MPP

The MPP provides a foundation in the core principles, concepts and methods of public policy research and analysis and develops the skills to solve public policy problems. The Master of Public Policy is available as either a 120-point degree (Taught or Research Masters) or a 180-point degree (Taught Masters), depending on your entry qualification. The duration of the 120-point Taught Masters is one year full-time or up to four years part-time, while the Research Masters is one year full-time or up to two years part-time. The duration of the 180-point programme is full-time: one semester + 12 months or part-time: two semesters + 24 months.

www.arts.auckland.ac.nz/policy

Master of Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages – MTESOL

This taught masters degree programme is designed for the professional development of teachers. If you already have experience in English language teaching, the MTESOL will enable you to develop knowledge and skills for employment as an English language teacher or in a more senior role. You can take the MTESOL either by distance, or on campus, or in a combination of these two modes. There is also the opportunity to complete a dissertation.

The MTESOL may be completed in one year of full-time or up to four years of part-time study. (Admission to and completion of this programme does not meet New Zealand teacher registration requirements.)

www.arts.auckland.ac.nz/tesol

Master of Theology – MTheol

The MTheol is a one-year degree that may be taken following an initial year of postgraduate study in a Bachelor of Theology (Honours) or Postgraduate Diploma in Theology. The MTheol is a Research Masters, enabling you to pursue your interests in depth by undertaking substantial research. Part-time study is available over two years.

www.arts.auckland.ac.nz/mtheol

Doctoral degrees

Doctor of Philosophy – PhD

The PhD consists of advanced research that makes an original contribution to scholarship in the field. You will present your research as a thesis and in most cases will complete an oral examination. PhD research is largely self-determined. Under the direction of an expert supervisor, you will shift from student to researcher or academic.

The PhD takes three to four years of full-time study to complete (part-time study is possible). There are opportunities to include a creative practice component and to enrol at an approved overseas institution.

www.arts.auckland.ac.nz/phd

Diplomas and certificates

Graduate Diploma in Arts – GradDipArts

This flexible diploma is ideal as a bridging programme to postgraduate study. You can take courses at intermediate and advanced undergraduate level or a combination of undergraduate and postgraduate courses. The GradDipArts is completed in one year of full-time or up to two years of part-time study.

www.arts.auckland.ac.nz/grad-dip-arts

Postgraduate Diploma in Arts – PGDipArts

The PGDipArts is an alternative to the BA(Hons) and may also be able to be used as an entry qualification for the one-year MA. The diploma is completed in one year of full-time or up to four years of part-time study.

www.arts.auckland.ac.nz/pg-dip-arts

Postgraduate Diploma in Language Teaching – PGDipLT

The PGDipLT is a professional language teaching qualification, combining theory with practice and familiarising you with current teaching approaches. You can complete the diploma in one year of full-time or up to four years of part-time study.

www.arts.auckland.ac.nz/pg-dip-language-teaching

Postgraduate Diploma in Theology – PGDipTheol

The PGDipTheol is an alternative to the Bachelor of Theology (Honours). You may take it over a longer period of part-time study than the BTheol(Hons). You may also use it as an entry qualification for the Master of Theology if your grades are sufficiently high. The PGDipTheol is completed in one year of full-time or up to four years part-time study.

www.arts.auckland.ac.nz/pgdiptheol

Postgraduate Diploma in Translation Studies – PGDipTranslationStud

Designed to meet the growing need for professional translators, this programme gives you a solid understanding of translation as a professional activity, with an emphasis on both theory and practice, including training in computer-assisted translation. The diploma is completed in one year of full-time or up to four years of part-time study.

Postgraduate Certificate in Advanced Interpreting – PGCertAdvInterp

This programme can prepare you for a career in public service or community interpreting. There is a strong focus on interpreting contexts relevant to New Zealand including legal, medical and business interpreting. The PGCertAdvInterp is currently only available for Chinese and Japanese and is completed in two semesters of part-time study, ideally starting in Semester Two.

www.arts.auckland.ac.nz/interpreting

Bridging programmes

Completing a bridging programme may enable you to take a postgraduate programme in an area that is different to your previous field of study.

Bridging programmes consist of any preparatory study considered appropriate by the Graduate Adviser of the subject you are interested in and which is approved by the faculty. You will need to complete this to the required standard to be admitted to a postgraduate programme.

www.arts.auckland.ac.nz/bridging-programmes

Transitional Certificate – TransCert

This might range from two to eight undergraduate courses, with any prerequisite courses. The Transitional Certificate is only awarded if you proceed to your intended postgraduate programme.

Graduate Diploma in Arts – GradDipArts

If a full year of study is necessary for you to prepare for postgraduate study, a Graduate Diploma in Arts may be appropriate. Refer to the information on this page under Diplomas and certificates.

Certificate of Proficiency – COP

This may be an option if the Graduate Adviser determines that you need to take just one or two courses as preparation for postgraduate study.

"Studying a Bachelor of Arts exploded my mind with all the new things I was learning about drama and the world. What I love now about postgraduate study is the freedom I have to really focus on what I enjoy about theatre and performance, and its ability to highlight important issues and create changes within people."

"My Masters project looks at what it means to be a triple minority within New Zealand and how the staging of those stories affects the audience. Storytelling is a huge part of my Samoan culture and this is my adaption and staging of stories and experiences that are unique to young, brown females in Niu Sila (New Zealand)."

"Being a postgraduate student is an academic journey, as well as a personal one. You need to be disciplined in how you manage your time, but it's also super essential to remember that self-care is just as important. My time as a postgraduate student has definitely been the highlight of my studies so far, and I hope that everyone experiences the same growth in knowledge that I've been fortunate enough to have."

"I've always had an interest in religious history and the relationships between different religious groups. Coming from a multi-religious upbringing, I always found it interesting how each religion reacted and tolerated the other."

"My research looks at the transition from polytheistic Rome to a monotheistic empire as told by the bishops. By analysing the sermons and other written works of these bishops, I hope to understand the ways in which paganism was outlawed and considered harmful to social structures and how tolerance of paganism both enabled and disabled Christianity's road to success."

"I chose to do postgraduate study at the Faculty of Arts because after completing my undergraduate studies here, I had a support network in place that was like whānau. I was really happy to have Tuākana mentors and lecturers who believed in me from day one."

"I think some people ignore the prospect of doing postgraduate study because they think they're not good or smart enough, but you'll never know what you can achieve if you don't find out more. Get talking to graduate advisers, lecturers and tutors, or even other people in your class. Even if you're thinking of another path, at least keep your options open – it's the best feeling knowing that you have more than one option after study."

"Being an international doctoral student, I really appreciate how knowledgeable and approachable the amazing staff are at the Faculty of Arts. When I think of the work the academics in the Faculty's Te Wānanga o Waipapa – School of Māori Studies and Pacific Studies – have and continue to do on the world stage, I am in awe."

"My doctoral thesis explores the ways in which Māori use social media, specifically Facebook, for political organising and activism around a specific context of environmental issues in Aotearoa/New Zealand."

"My interest in researching this topic first began with technology and how social media is literally changing the way we communicate. This, coupled with my bachelors degree (Business Management and International Media) and my masters degree (Urban Sustainability), which involved fieldwork and research in Aotearoa/New Zealand, plus an interest in protecting and promoting Māori culture and heritage, eventually all converged in me pursuing this topic."

Fees and money matters

Fees

Fees for 2016 will be set at the end of 2015. Fees are generally adjusted annually to reflect increases in the University's costs. Fees are charged on the basis of course enrolment rather than by programme and can therefore vary within the faculty.

As an indication, the 2015 annual tuition fees for an Arts postgraduate programme are $6,459-$8,485 (approximately $30,562-$35,911 for international students). These amounts are based on a standard full-time enrolment.

The 2015 annual tuition fees for a PhD are $6,903. New international PhD students usually pay the same tuition fees as New Zealand students.

For more information, visit www.auckland.ac.nz/fees

There is also a student services fee (approximately $738 in 2015). Students not in standard full-time enrolment pay proportionately lower fees.

Financial support

As well as the funding opportunities outlined below, there are also employment opportunities as Graduate Teaching Assistants (tutors) and Research Assistants.

Scholarships

Major scholarships for postgraduate students include:

- Faculty of Arts Masters Thesis Scholarships.
- The University of Auckland and Faculty of Arts Masters/Honours/Postgraduate Diploma Scholarships.
- The University of Auckland Māori and Pacific Graduate Scholarships (Masters/Honours/Postgraduate Diploma).

- Faculty of Arts International Masters Degree Scholarships.
- The University of Auckland Doctoral Scholarships.

There are also scholarships funded by donors and external agencies. Some scholarships, such as the University of Auckland Doctoral Scholarships, are available to international students.

For more information, visit www.auckland.ac.nz/scholarships

The Faculty of Arts Graduate Research Adviser provides funding information and assistance with scholarship applications on an individual basis.

Faculty of Arts Summer Research Scholarships involve working with leading researchers over the summer. Information is posted on our website – see www.arts.auckland.ac.nz/summer-scholarships

PhD funding

PreSS accounts: All University of Auckland doctoral students receive an annual stipend which is paid into a PreSS (Postgraduate Research Student Support) account. This is intended to cover direct research costs.

The Faculty of Arts Doctoral Research Fund: This fund is intended to facilitate high quality research by providing financial support for research costs over and above those provided by University PreSS accounts.

For more information about PhD research funding visit www.arts.auckland.ac.nz/phd

Student loans and allowances

For information about eligibility criteria and how to apply, visit www.auckland.ac.nz/studentloansandallowances

Admission to postgraduate programmes

To be admitted to a postgraduate programme you must meet the admission requirements for the programme and obtain approval from the relevant Graduate Adviser and the faculty.

English language requirements for international applicants

If you are an international applicant and English is not your first language you will be required to provide satisfactory evidence of your proficiency in English. This can take the form of an acceptable IELTS or TOEFL score, or an approved alternative. The minimum entry requirements for proof of English language proficiency for admission to Faculty of Arts postgraduate programmes are:

- Academic IELTS: an overall score of 6.5 with no band less than 6.0.
- TOEFL paper-based: an overall score of 575 with a TWE of no less than 4.5.
- TOEFL iBT: an overall score of 90 with a written score of at least 21.

For more information and approved alternatives visit www.auckland.ac.nz/is-english

Programmes in Translation and Interpreting require higher scores – refer to the admission requirements below.

If you do not meet these requirements, the University's English Language Academy (ELA) offers English programmes, such as the Foundation Certificate in English for Academic Purposes (FCertEAP) and the English Pathway for Postgraduate Studies (EPPS), as well as IELTS preparation courses and examinations. Visit www.ela.auckland.ac.nz

How to apply

For all programmes except the PhD

Consult a Graduate Adviser

There is a Graduate Adviser for each subject or programme. You are expected to consult the Graduate Adviser about your study plans before you apply for admission. For contact details go to the relevant website indicated on pg. 10-14 and then follow the link to the associated disciplinary area or school website.

You must first apply to be admitted into your intended postgraduate programme. Your application process depends on whether or not you have previously been enrolled at the University of Auckland. To find out how to apply go to www.arts.auckland.ac.nz/pg-application

If you are approved, or conditionally approved, into the programme you have applied for, you will be notified via email to submit a Postgraduate Enrolment Form for the individual courses you want to take. Please consult your Graduate Adviser(s) before submitting your Postgraduate Enrolment Form. Find out more about enrolment processes at www.arts.auckland.ac.nz/pg-enrolment

Additional application requirements

Your subject or programme may have additional application requirements. To check these, go to the relevant website indicated on pg. 10-14 and refer to the "Postgraduate study" page.

International applicants

Apply online at www.auckland.ac.nz/applynow

We suggest you start the application process as early as possible to allow sufficient time to apply for your visa. The University has a number of official representatives overseas who can assist you with the application process in person. To find a representative near you visit www.auckland.ac.nz/overseasrep
