

'I'm loving the writing style, you just get hooked straight into both stories and don't notice much around you!'
- Rebecca, Te Awamutu PP

'Just finished A Sky Full of Stars. Very Jojo Moyes... I cried buckets! The six-year-old boy losing his mama got me big time. Great read.'
- Anita, Gisborne PP

'I loved this book, I thought the characters were fabulous and it definitely pulled at the heartstrings, however it has a great feel-good ending.'
- Susan, Mairangi Bay Take Note

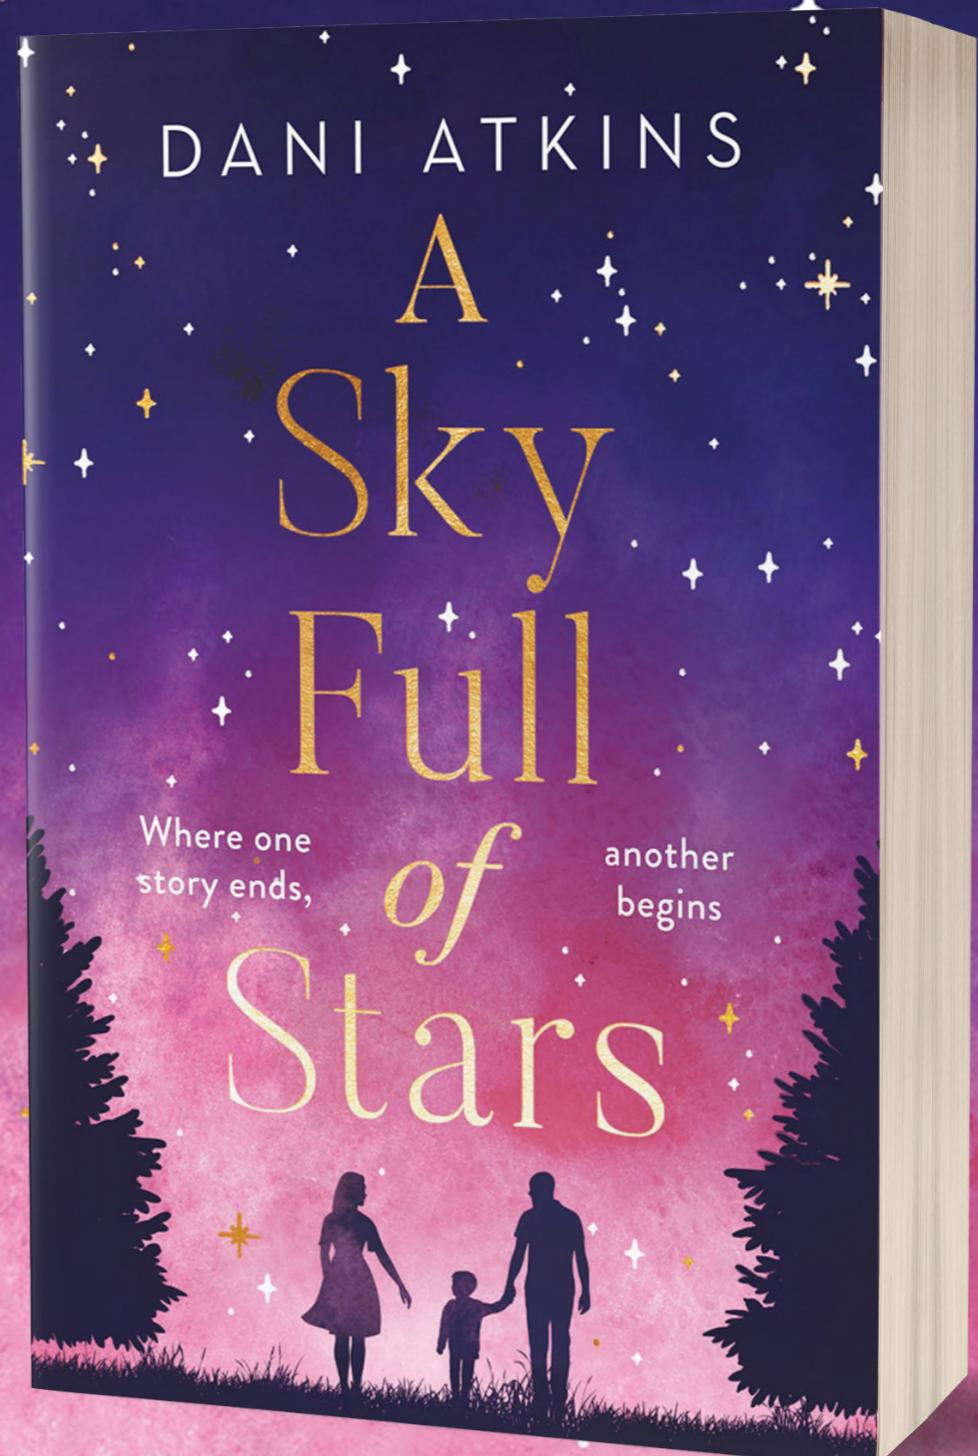

'I really enjoyed this. Kept me thinking right to the end. And the ending was not what I expected.'

- Tess, Waipukurau PP

'It was sad... tears were streaming down my face. It was a little bit romantic... but not horribly cheesy. It was funny.... gently smiling in parts. It was heartwarming... made me feel all sorts of fuzzies.'

- Jane McLean, HarperCollins NZ

He'd have done everything differently if he'd known she'd be gone so soon...

Reach for your tissues as Dani Atkins squeezes the heart in this poignant love story, in which a newly widowed father brings up his six-year-old son alone.

When Lisa married Alex, she gave his life meaning. But then Lisa dies in a train crash, and their universe is destroyed.

Alex is shattered by loss, and overwhelmed by the difficulties of being a single father to a six-year-old boy. Then Alex meets four strangers.

As Alex hears their stories, he begins to realise the world may not be as cruel and senseless as it seems.

Dani lives in a small village in Hertfordshire with her husband, one Siamese cat and a very soppy Border Collie.
